

What is Opanuj Frontend?

This is a ten-week online training delivered in a cohort format, where participants will learn the key aspects of developing production, professional frontend applications.

Participants gain access to a set of lessons, exercises and supplementary materials that help them understand the most important aspects of modern frontend development.

During the training, mentors visit to support participants in consultations and Q&A sessions (afternoons).

The training agenda is built in such a way that any developer working with a modern frontend framework (React, Angular, Vue and others) can gain new knowledge about application client-side.

What will students learn?

Frontend architecture

How to make the right design decisions when planning and implementing an application.

Patterns and best practices

How to write easy-to-maintain code that will allow you to scale and further develop applications and libraries.

Quality engineering

How to test front-end applications to minimize the risk and number of errors in production.

Frontend collaboratively

How to share components and services to accelerate the work of front-end teams.

Applications in production

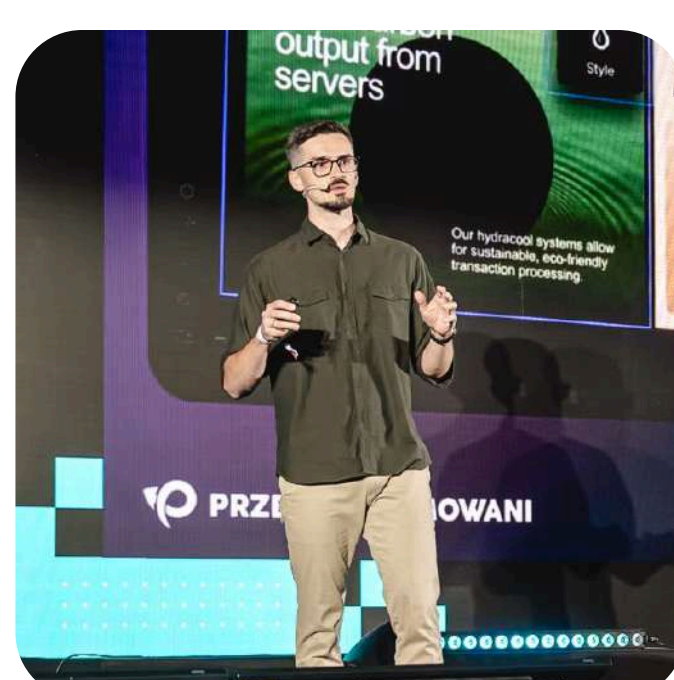

How to monitor and respond to events that may occur after implementing a front-end application.
